WEATHER OF CONCERN

Weather of Concern

- Increasing offshore winds over the North Bay mountains are expected today and relative humidity values will drop into the low teens/single digits later Saturday and Saturday night, leading to a slightly increased fire risk over the impacted areas.
- A moderate to strong Santa Ana wind event is expected for the Los Angeles and Ventura County mountains and most valleys from 2200 hours today through 1800 hours Sunday.
  - This will be a short-lived, but intense event that could result in rapid fire growth given the very dry fuel moisture and lack of significant rainfall this season.

Active Weather Warnings, Watches and Advisories by County:

- <https://alerts-v2.weather.gov/counties/CA>

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

Strong high pressure just west of CA moved west and weakened as a cold front approached from the north. At this point no precipitation is expected with the front. Temperatures will be cooler, but still several degrees above normal, and minimum daily relative humidity (RH) will be higher. N-NE/offshore winds following the front could gust to 35-45 mph and locally higher in the usual areas from the western Cascade-Sierra slopes to the coast today, with winds dropping off on Sunday. A similar cold front will pass over the region Sunday night, and similar winds are expected Monday and Tuesday. This front is expected to produce isolated light rain and snow showers in far northern areas. Mild and dry weather with light northerly winds can be expected Wednesday and Thursday.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

An upper level low is expected to drop into the Southwest, resulting in gusty winds during the weekend and cooler weather early next week. Today, onshore pressure gradients will return which will lead to temperatures dropping 2-5 degrees each day. Highs will be back to the 50s in the mountains to the 70s in the valleys today. As the low advances toward the area, gusty north and northwest winds of 20-30 mph will develop today across the Kern County Mountains, the I-5 Corridor toward the Angeles National Forest. These winds will turn offshore and increase to the 25-35 mph with gusts over 60 mph tonight into Sunday. The strongest winds will occur over Ventura and northern Los Angeles Counties from the Santa Clarita Valley toward the Oxnard plain. Temperatures Sunday will jump back into the 80s over much of Southern California on Sunday. The winds should subside by Sunday evening. Sharply colder weather is expected Monday and Tuesday with highs dropping into the upper 30s and 40s in the mountains to the 60s at lower elevations. Scattered showers will be possible Monday evening into Tuesday, but most areas will see less than a quarter of an inch of rainfall. Gusty offshore winds may develop Tuesday night, leading to sunny and warmer weather returning by the middle of next week.
